1 Strings in C++

C++ has a `string` type defined in the `<string>` header file, and that you can use a C++ `string` almost like a basic type. The `string` type lives in the `std` namespace.

```
std::string myString = "Hello, World";
cout << "The value of myString is " << myString << endl;
```